Declaration of War.

If one country declares war on another country there is, of course, immediately a "state of war" between them, even though a shot has not been fired. The declaration is equivalent to war and the logical beginning of hostilities.

The Geese and the Cranes.
The Geese and the Cranes fed in the same meadow. A birdcatcher came to ensnare them in his nets. The Cranes being light of wing, flew away at his approach; while the Geese, being slower of flight and heavier in their bodies, were captured.—From Aesop's Fables.

Rings in Use for Ages.
Rings are so ancient that no one can say when or where they originated. The Egyptians had them thousands of years B. C., and the Babylonians and Hebrews used them in very ancient times.

Slur on "Mother's" Cookery.
He—"Can't you get this cook of ours to prepare biscuits like mother used to make?" She (who had tried some of them)—"Not unless we lay in a supply of Portland cement. The manufacture of such biscuits without that ingredient is a lost art."—Richmond Times Dispatch.
